ANOTHER FAKE BEHEADING

This one was supposedly of British "hostage" David Haines.

I really do not know what to do about another fake beheading. because people are so onto the B.S. by now that it probably will not matter to dig through whatever this next phony is and point out how and why it is fake. WHAT IS IMPORTANT HOWEVER is for Israel and the greater Jewish community to figure out that THIS TIME REPEATING A LIE WILL NOT WORK and will instead backfire. People are onto the psy ops, and more of the same will only incite hatred towards Israel, the Jewish community and the scamming MSM.

A message to the greater Jewish community: You lost it with the first beheaded CPR doll, and the fact that SITE is releasing these when it is a known Mossad front company does not help. If in the future any beheadings look real, you can safely bet that all the psy op crew did was sub contract out to someone who would be GOOD at it, such as Steven Spielberg to help them speil a better phony. Not that good ol Steve would go along with it

Every year brings a vaccine hype...SARS, SWINE, general FLU, now ebola with completely different symptoms, duration, and apparently recovery time...anyone with 1 year of med school knows this is wrong ...

Here is the Huff PO article... http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2014/07/29/ebola-outbreak-west-africa-photos-virus_n_5631405.html

My response:

You are right, and I myself am suspicious that it may all just be a hoax to get people to submit to forced vaccinations. However, if I am wrong in my suspicions, and this thing is real but a modified version that does not show classic symptoms, and I convince people to do nothing, then I would do a lot of damage. SO, to be responsible I strongly advise people to stock up on vitamin C. I feel this is a perfect middle ground. If it is not real, then you lost practically nothing by getting the vitamin C, and if you take it you lose nothing, and have everything to lose if you accept a vaccine from a system we all now know cannot be trusted after it was BUSTED IN FULL by a CDC whistleblower. I am doing what I can to protect people with proper information the best I can come up with, in the hopes of getting some very evil people to call off whatever they have planned with this "ebola", real or not, and if real, lab created to boot.

For the record, Ebola is a huge virus that has been found in fossil form. From the fossils, they have been able to deduct that the five strains in existence have not mutated once in over 50,000 years. Ebola was a stable virus, why now has this new one according to the story line, morphed over 400 times? could it be that a bio lab released something totally new and unstable? If that is not the case, it is ALL A HOAX. Either way, the agenda 21 crowd is BUSTED and NO VACCINE WILL WORK against a 400X morphing virus real or not.

UPDATE: Bill Gates is now funding the Ebola vaccine, and anyone who knows about Bill Gates and anti fertility vaccines knows what that means!

Sep 12, 2014: Already over 5,000 infected and 2400 dead - this is where it is obvious the curve is not being followed anymore. It appears to be going hockey stick.

Jan, 2016 - Infected: 6,816,734,096 Dead: 4,090,040,457

The large jumps are from subtracted months, (I did not re-calculate the curve, other than to simply remove months that will not be there if the trend continues. Obviously it probably will not spread at this rate (if it is real at all) this is simply a calculation based upon what is happening now (if it is even real).

And I have a good way to question the reality of it all:

Why no Ebola pictures

A serious question must be raised about this current outbreak - why no pictures of classic Ebola? If this outbreak is real, and this is Ebola at all, it is so radically altered from it's earlier type that it is effectively not the same bug at all. Clearly, what we are seeing with this outbreak is not normal Ebola.

Permalink

Do a dated Google search of the Ebola outbreak. Set Google to only recall pictures from the last month or so. You will discover that there is not one photo of Ebola with this outbreak, with all photos of real Ebola being drop ins from past outbreaks. That is really enough to make me think that there either might not be an outbreak of Ebola, or that if there is, it is not the normal Ebola from the past. If people are dying (the latest number is 2400) it is not classic ebola doing this. At any rate, the death rates are taking an exponential curve now according to the WHO, if this is even real at all.

In light of the fact that there are no pictures from this outbreak, I would like people to consider something Consider that even in Africa there are cell phone cameras and internet. Why no Ebola photos? In fact, Liberia and Sierra Leon are English speaking countries, so any photos posted would be listed as Ebola, in English which would make it easy to find them in English. Why are we seeing NADA? Even Al Jazeera's "Ebola, In Pictures" does not show JACK, if they really put it in pictures SOMETHING, ANYTHING should be there. Instead, there is NADA.

Estimated market penetration rates in Liberia's telecoms sector – end-2013

Market	Penetration rate
Mobile	69%
Internet	7.4%
Fixed	0.4%

(Source: BuddeComm based on various sources)

The fact that quarantines are now supposedly in place cannot account for the lack of photos, because a cell phone can send a picture out of a quarantine zone. Liberia is almost entirely wireless now, with almost 70 percent of Liberians having cell phones, and there are 4 cell phone companies there. Though only 7 percent of Liberians have internet, the rest can get on the web with cyber cafe's, and there would no doubt be a few in the quarantine zone, WHY NO EBOLA PICTURES

THEN? If there was a disaster in progress you can bet SOMEONE, ANYONE, EVEN AN AMERICAN DOCTOR WHO WORKED THIS would have gotten a shot of Ebola out of there, with the classic symptoms. And Sierra Leon may not be as well off communication wise, but there are still more than 2 million cell phones there. Something stinks with this, reality on the ground is obviously not matching what the media is saying.

And there is another problem to address with all of this - and that is that the people in the Ebola zone do not believe there is an Ebola outbreak. One would think that if Ebola was real, that in Africa, where people still talk and rumors spread by word of mouth and almost 70 percent of the people have cell phones in Liberia that even one case of Ebola would cause such a ruckus that they would not need the WHO to tell them something is going on. The fact that the people there do not believe it is real stands as a serious red flag.

And how can you have an outbreak THAT BIG have no confirmed cases outside of the hot zone? Quite frankly, the stories of American doctors getting cured are lies, because Ebola blows people away for months if not years because Ebola causes serious organ damage, and the doctors are already out and about, playing Tennis and Golf. They did not have Ebola.

So the question is then, is this Ebola outbreak just a false flag setup for forced vaccinations?

I am seriously questioning if that is in fact the case. Millions of Liberian cell phone cams surely suggest it. All the Ebola photos that are associated with this outbreak show body bags and hospital wards with people who could be there for anything, there are no bleeding eyes and ears, no blistered arms, NOTHING showing at all from this outbreak, which if it was real should have been the most well documented and published of all. No other outbreak has matched this one in size, and no other outbreak happened with such a presence of the ability to document it. The lack of photographic proof in hard set terms is damning, it really does look like it could all be a ruse.

Nothing should happen with solar flare

An X1.6 flare is heading towards earth. That is huge. But it is not a direct hit (close to direct but not direct) and I would not sweat it. There will be a really nice aurora and perhaps a few short term communication outages at a max. Someone is spawning a joke that it could set off nukes, that is such a "crock" it could cook a turkey. Bottom line? Don't sweat the flare, it cannot possibly blow out things here on earth. Satellites may be at risk, but I would expect ALL of them to automatically recover, provided they have fuel aboard to make adjustments to course deviations the increased solar wind will no doubt cause, AND their circuits can take it. I doubt we will actually lose any. Then again, I admit I am guessing here, this is the first X flare to get a direct hit since satellites were launched.

Reduce the chances of a new 911, spread the word!

Permalink

To reduce the chances of a new 911, I am going to post the best I know of that proves Israel and the Bush clan did the last one. Youtube does not allow embeds to this web site, but links still work, and I think there will be quite a bit here you may not have seen before. I will start with the obvious (for newbies) and move on to the really damning stuff.

First, who could miss Larry Silverstein saying "pull it" to building 7?

And the BBC blooper announcing building 7 fell long before it did was a FATAL SCREW UP

And believe it or not, the FBI, which was destroyed when building 7 fell, came out a few years later and said the phone calls from the planes NEVER HAPPENED, (and this is how Muslims got framed up for this) but the scamming ziopress never mentioned the FBI called B.S. on the plastic knives and boxcutters and Arab terror meme. Fortunately the CBC in Canada at least had the balls to air it.

And the nose out video is a serious oddity, it suggests explosives were placed in the building to fake it all, and is the root of the no plane theory. I am undecided on this one, but It certainly is an oddity worth considering.

Now onto the more unusual stuff

Did you know that Fox aired the exact plot for 911 via a television program six months before it happened? That would be predictive programming to the MAX. Someone there was in the know.

And there was a man named Johanneman who was later murdered because he witnessed the detonation of the bombs in the basement There are a lot of shill videos about this guy after he was murdered, further proof it is all legit

And you should not overlook the testimony of This witness, who confirms what Johanneman said

And the most skilled of all 911 witnesses is also among the most damning, William Rodriguez

I think the best testimony of all was from the firemen, they are so clear about this it totally destroys the official story. Show THAT ONE to your "GOTTA GET BINLADEN" brainwashed pal.

ARABS MY @SS!!

Now onto the demolition sprites, proof the WTC was set up for demolition well beforehand

This video nails the demolition unbelievably well - a couple minutes in it also shows a man getting blown out of a window by an obvious demolition charge

And why, again did WTC 7 look so much like a controlled demolition? Ask Larry Silverstein!

Fire does not bring skyscrapers down, and the CCTV tower in China proves it. This video covers the CCTV fire very well, this fire is the most damning of all towards the official story on 911, because the CCTV tower was very similar to WTC7.

And Russia has called B.S. on 911, perhaps that is why they are test firing nuclear missiles? Ok that probably has more to do with Isis being fake and the Ukraine conflict and sanctions and NATO threats, but even all of that is still games being played by America zombie child of Israel, who could blame Russia for lumping 911 in with the latest games?

I would laugh if this x class solar flare messed up any remote control plans.

Here's a good one from
Uncensored Magazine

Jean Paul Luwig or ...

Dark Hussein Obama?

Subway bombing probable HOAX

Chile Subway bombing is likely to be a hoax rehash of old story, read this article dated July

Barak Hussein Obama? SSN# 042-68-4425

Well, well, well, it looks like someone thoroughly checked this out! I was wondering who was going to do research into B.O.'s SSN's numbers...

Jean Paul Luwig or Barak Hussein Obama? SSN# 042-68-4425

An intensive investigation has revealed the identity of the man whose Social Security Number (SSN) is being used by President Obama:

Jean Paul Ludwig, who was born in France in 1890, immigrated to the United States in 1924, and was assigned SSN 042-68-4425 (Obama's current SSN) received on or about March 1977.

Mr. Ludwig lived most of his adult life in Connecticut. Because of that, his SSN begins with the digits 042, which are among only a select few reserved for Connecticut residents.

Barack H. Obama never lived or worked in that state! Therefore, there is no reason on earth for his SSN to start with the digits 042. None whatsoever!

Now comes the best part! J. P. Ludwig spent the final months of his life in Hawaii, where he died.

Conveniently, Obama's grandmother, Madelyn Payne Dunham, worked part-time in the Probate Office in the Honolulu Hawaii Courthouse, and therefore had access to the SSNs of deceased individuals.

The Social Security Administration was never informed of Ludwig's death, and because he never received Social Security benefits there were no benefits to stop and therefore, no questions were ever raised.

The suspicion, of course, is that Dunham, knowing her grandson was not a U.S. Citizen, either because he was born in Kenya or became a citizen of Indonesia upon his adoption by Lolo Soetoro, simply scoured the probate records, until she found someone, who died who was not receiving Social Security benefits, and selected Mr. Ludwig's Connecticut SSN for Obama.

Just wait until Trump gets past the birth certificate and onto the issue of Barry O's use of a stolen SSN! You will see leftist heads exploding, because they will have no way of defending Obama.

Although many Americans do not understand the meaning of the term "natural born" there are few who do not understand that if you are using someone else's SSN it is a clear indication of fraud.

Let's all get this information out to everybody on our mailing lists.

If the voters of this great nation can succeed in bringing this lying, deceitful, cheating, corrupt, impostor to justice it will be the biggest and best news in decades for our country and the world.

If, after reading this, you just say, "Oh well; ho hum," you get what

New Ebola vaccine will be worthless

Permalink

With 368 mutations already found, there will be no vaccine that will work. Any pushing of an ebola vaccine will be for something other than providing immunity for Ebola, and for anyone who is aware of the recent CDC bust of vaccine links to autism, that "other" is not likely to be good.

It may not even be Ebola at all, and is likely to instead be some sort of engineered hybrid.

Prior to this outbreak, Ebola had a very high genetic stability and remained unchanged through multiple outbreaks. In fact, Ebola has been so stable that it was considered remarkable for this. Why then, with this outbreak, are there so many mutations of this new type, when in past outbreaks NO mutations have been noted at all?

Additionally, this new outbreak has none of the characteristics of previous outbreaks

There is something missing in this Ebola outbreak, and it is the bloody eyes and ears, and bleeding through the skin. This time all the bleeding is internal and nothing shows outwardly. All the bloody blistered skin photos on the web are from previous outbreaks, with this particular strain people look outwardly normal up until death and die from internal bleeding, vomiting up blood and having massive stools of black goo from internal bleeding. In this way, the new Ebola is mimicking Parvo in dogs, and I would at least tenuously bet that traditional Ebola has been merged in a lab with a different virus that is known for causing only internal bleeding, possibly parvo.

368 mutations in a previously stable virus

screams BIO LAB

This is where things may go amiss. Previously, Ebola was a stable virus that could have had a predictable cure. The current strain is mutating so rapidly that if all the recorded cases were added up and divided by the number of mutations, each mutated strain would have only infected an average of 20 people. That is a phenomenal mutation rate, which will render any vaccine attempt useless.

And how could it have happened other than willful intent? The answer is obvious - a lab created this new strain, that lab did not have endless people to kill to prove their virus stable and they just let it go in live tests, out in the wild. And because it was not stable, they now have a mutating monster on the loose. That is the best explanation there could possibly be for why Ebola, which has remained stable as far back as records go, suddenly became a chameleon. This new bug is an unstable bioweapon, possibly more unstable than its creators intended.

Beware of history rewrites, which will provide plausible deniability for whoever did this

Watch out for any news saying how Ebola mutates continuously without mentioning that prior to this outbreak Ebola was VERY STABLE, and question strongly WHY this new strain is so different from past strains, from outward symptoms, to incubation times, to mutation rates, it is all far too different for this to have happened naturally in a formerly stable virus. Someone did this and the question WHO DID THIS should be kept front and center until we get the answer. We know an American biowarfare firm was in this area "testing Ebola detection kits", I suggest people start with that.

There are very few pictures of people infected with this new strain, and none show the normal bleeding. Why?

Take a look at a google image search with all photos dated a year or more old, and compare them to a google image search of pictures dated to within the time frame of THIS OUTBREAK AND NOTICE THAT EVERYTHING OUT THERE FOR THIS OUTBREAK THAT IS RECOGNIZABLE AS EBOLA IS JUST A REPEAT OF OLD EBOLA PICTURES with anything new just showing people without any blisters.

Almost all of what we are seeing is body bags which show NOTHING, with all other pictures showing none of the classic symptoms. The picture to the left is a prime example, this man who reportedly is an Ebola victim is showing NOTHING that would indicate he ever had Ebola at all. So why is this so different? People in Africa could certainly publish pictures to the web, why then is all we are seeing is pictures of something that is obviously not normal ebola? Pictures dated to before this outbreak clearly show what ebola looks like, I challenge you to find any photo at all from this new outbreak that looks even remotely similar to traditional ebola.

The symptoms say it all

Here are the symptoms from the current strain,

- Fever (greater than 38.6°C or 101.5°F)
- Severe headache
- Muscle pain
- Weakness
- Diarrhea
- Vomiting
- Abdominal (stomach) pain
- Lack of appetite

In other words, the current symptoms mimic the flu (except for the noted internal bleeding this outbreak has). Now for the classic ebola symptoms:

"After 3-4 days of non-specific symptoms and signs, patients typically experienced progressively severe sore throat, developed a maculopapular rash, had intractable abdominal pain, and began to bleed from multiple sites, principally the gastrointestinal tract. "

And the pictures of this current outbreak prove the classic ebola is not what we are dealing with this time around. The biggest thing in common is gastrointestinal bleeding.

Recovery times also indicate this new ebola is more like a souped up flu than ebola

Usually, with ebola, recovery takes months and sometimes never happens completely because the liver, kidneys and other organs including the brain get damaged. Yet we see in the media pictures of ebola "survivors" that are up and about only two weeks after having it. This is not possible with real ebola, this outbreak really is more like a really bad flu than anything else

The bottom line is that the symptoms are not consistent with classic ebola. Recovery times are too fast, and the current CDC list of symptoms does not match the old list except when the CDC combines the new list with the old list to muddy the water. Something is amiss with this, and the new vaccine can only be bogus with so many mutated variants. There is no way any vaccine can be real, we are dealing with a bioweapon this time around which makes that impossible, avoid any "vaccine" like you would the disease itself.

Interesting: DNA proves Jack the Ripper was a Jew, and read the comments! DAMAGE CONTROL!

These are temporarily set up for sting operations and the fact a few showed up during a scan is not surprising at all. Also Google scanning e-mails is such a no brainer I did not bother with it.

Egypt offers Palestinians 1,600 square KM of Sinai Peninsula

UPDATE: There is now some confusion as to who said what with this, but it still happened

Those who have said Egypt was playing the tyrant are now proven wrong, Egypt has offered to replace the Gaza strip with something five times larger. And the Sinai peninsula is a good location to boot. Yet Abbas said no, and that really ticks me off. I have a whole new plan then: Have the IDF open the border to allow the Palestinians out, have the U.N. move in to make sure they have food and shelter to get going with, and SCREW ABBAS, in the wake of what Israel has done to Gaza, where I myself believe they murdered over 500,000 this time (though that will never be reported) Abbas should say YES and let it happen, an offer like this does not EVER come along EVER.

As far as the deaths go, they will show up in the next census and I believe this land offer is in part being done to conceal how many people really did die in this last assault. The next census could explain it all away as :they went elsewhere:

There is a lingering problem however, the Sinai is still part of Eretz Israel, and Israel could simply fake rocket attacks from this new area, move in and claim it as well. But then again, Egypt has an air force and Israelis have no balls.

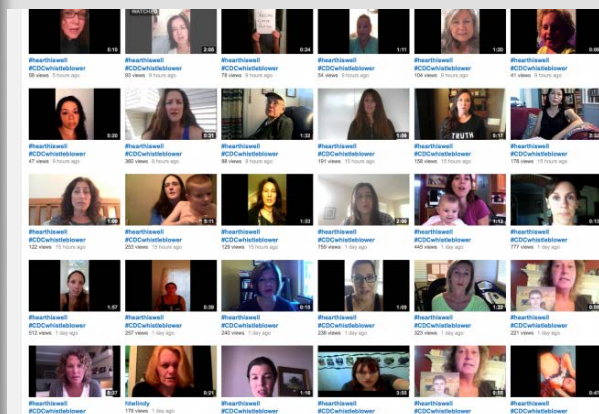

FACT: Vaccine induced autism is an intentional act of war on Western civilization and anyone else who is in competition with a certain tribe, and truth be told, ALL CHILDREN NOT OF THAT TRIBE ARE DAMAGED BY VACCINATIONS THAT TRIBE FORMULATED FOR THAT SPECIFIC PURPOSE, and the ones damaged most show it as autism. Modern vaccines are weapons of war, pure and simple.

Mothers of autistic children damaged by vaccines speak up by posting videos to a common channel

From the Epoch times

As the confession of CDC whistleblower Dr. William Thompson appeared to be getting corked into a bottle of sorts last week, the story took a rogue and unexpected turn, by way of an accidental citizen reporting campaign.

View countless videos of mothers testifying that their children were wiped out by vaccines HERE all of these were posted in the last 3 days, this is a HUGE movement.

It began on the evening of Aug. 27, when CNN aired a segment in which three anchors sought to dismiss all concern that vaccines could be unsafe or cause autism—citing “67 studies,” that showed otherwise. The question of whether vaccines could cause autism was alive because Thompson had issued a press release on Aug. 27 confirming that he had been part of a team that had altered data for a scientific study in order to reach the conclusion that vaccines do not cause autism.

CNN Senior Medical Correspondent Elizabeth Cohen, who has a masters degree in public health, addressed the population that media often deride as “anti-vaxxers” (though they are all parents who did vaccinate their children) in tones that sounded quite condescending: “Vaccines are safe,” she said, leaning forward. “Autism is not a side effect of vaccines or to say it another way because some people don’t hear this well, vaccines do not cause autism.”

Little did she know what she would soon spark—a social media campaign among afflicted families that has come to be called the “Hear This Well” revolution.

Catalyzing Event

It all started with Polly Tommey.

Tommey, veteran vaccine safety advocate, and director of the Autism Media Channel, which broke the whistleblower story last week, was at home in Austin, Texas when somebody sent the CNN clip to her.

Tommey has two vaccinated grown children. Her daughter is fine, but her son suffered what she describes as a classic regression immediately after getting his MMR and DPT shots in the UK 17 years ago. He is now 18, and though improved through diet and gut restoration, still severely autistic.

“Exactly the same story as every parent tells,” Tommey told Epoch Times when asked about her son. “He was totally normal at 13 months before he got his shots. As soon as he got them, he got the raging fevers, seizures, high pitched screaming, all of it. Then we lost him. He lost eye contact, didn’t know who his parents were, he had horrendous bowel disease, diarrhea, bashing his head into the walls. The classic, unfolding stream of disasters.”

Tommey says she felt something shift inside when she watched the Cohen clip. “It was awful ... The fact that she made such a public, categorical declaration. I realized that thousands of mothers with newborn babies around the country would hear that, believe her, go vaccinate and possibly land in the same hell we all live in, daily. I couldn’t let it go.”

Tommey quickly created an amended clip, in which Cohen's voice, saying "Vaccines do not cause autism," was slowed down, until it sounded male, then sounded monstrous. Then the clip cuts to Tommey herself, saying her name, and explaining that her son was damaged by vaccines. "Some people don't hear that well," she stressed, raising her voice.

She posted it to her group of fellow parents.

"People started to say, 'Can we also make videos?' And I said yeah, that's a great idea." It quickly snowballed into a catalyzing event for this extremely pained community.

Mothers, father, grandmothers, grandfathers, children, siblings, and even unaffected people began recording videos ranging from 10 seconds to a minute and a half, telling very short versions of their stories, along with the line, "Some people don't hear this well," or just, "hear this well: Vaccines can and do cause autism."

Stories

Each story is unique, yet with a deeply troubling thread that stays consistent. Each testimonial reports a normal child, developing extreme symptoms within hours, or sometimes even minutes of getting certain shots—often, but far from only, the MMR vaccine (MMR stands for measles, mumps, rubella).

Soon a YouTube page was set up, and by Labor day, there were some 300 videos posted. They are also trickling in from other countries, in foreign languages.

Read more at the Epoch Times and let's see how long it takes Youtube to ban or block this channel. If you have a child that has been damaged by vaccines, tell what happened by joining this channel. UPDATE: Youtube is censoring the audio on many videos, but with the Jews wanting to dumb down ALL non jews via tainted vaccinations, with "autistic" children getting hit worse than most by this, what would you expect from Jewish owned Youtube?

New ebola vaccine approved for trials

Well, you know what I will do. I will run right down to the local herbal shop and buy more vitamin C. Only my dead body will ever get another injection of ANYTHING (and then from an embalmer), the fact that vaccines are weapons coupled with the fact that doctors are mostly paper trained idiots who do not know jack about what they are really dishing out coupled with the fact that evil is running the world all adds up to if ebola breaks out in THIS area, I will run from any mandated shots and hope that vitamin C works as I believe it will. I would trust chance more than I would EVER trust the UN, Red Cross or any other "relief agency" that nowadays only puts a false front on pure evil. And as far as the Red Cross goes, the fact the truth never came out of New Orleans proves they are now as whacked as anyone else.

The current vaccine scam in progress proves we were all correct about this all along, but if you still trust your vaccine pushing DOC, go ahead and TRY THIS chances are it is not the real thing that will be actually used anyway (they will just give something else benign during trials to provide plausible deniability for whatever is actually given). The onus is on them, they are already more than busted.

An additional warning about the "11 missing jets"

I do not know who the Washington Free Beacon is, but the story originated there and it is FALSE. There are not 11 jets missing from Tripoli, and if anything happens with jets on 911, they flew out of the Mojave boneyard and that is all there is to it.

My main worry is that with the fake beheadings, all the finger pointing at Russia, Flight 370, flight MH17 and all the other oddities including an ebola outbreak, which if real is definitely man made, all happening in the run up to the anniversary of 911, that this may be the time the Rothchild dynasty does something again. *When this is coupled with the fact that my mail is destroyed and the alt media is currently drawing blanks with practically everything due to extensive censorship of details, it is a red flag that something BIG is likely to be underway right now and preventive measures are already in place to keep anyone who finds hard facts from getting them out to the web.

The bottom line? if anything big goes down that is terror related, take all accusations of ISIS and Al Quaida, and replace them with Mossad/CIA. Only black ops could set the ground work as it has been set for this, so it has to all be done by them, from start to finish. Additionally, The Russians are not stupid about this anymore, and they are not going to sit around silently and let the U.S. gang rape the world on trumped up charges. Putin was sad the other day for a reason, possibly a nuclear reason. That would suit the agenda 21 crowd quite well.

Of all 911 anniversaries, the lead up to this one is the spookiest so far, and the extent to which ZION takes the action will be directly proportional to their fear of being called on their bluff by the world community. Unfortunately their bluffs often claim many lives.

Pentagon jet carrying 100 military people emergency lands in Iran

According to the Pentagon, the jet was a chartered jet carrying 100 military people which went off course and ran out of fuel. It requested permission to land in Iran. Two Iranian jets escorted it to Bandar Abbas, where it landed safely. No one is being detained. Iran will probably play nice with this and just let them go. UPDATE: The MSM is spinning this as a forced landing, it was not, it was completely voluntary and caused by the plane going off course and burning too much fuel, as the Pentagon originally stated. It is rumored that an outdated flight plan caused this, once again I doubt it. That is not what the Pentagon originally said, and all the Pentagon tweets magically vanished. It was not any sort of beurocratic problem, it simply went off course, ran out of fuel, requested a landing and received escort. Let's see where this goes, CNN will probably try to spin World War 3 with this one.

This has nothing to do with the single engine plane that crashed in Jamaica.

CPR Foley video censored by Youtube

Permalink

A heartfelt message to the people running the place

My post was for the purpose of stalling the war machine. Your censoring of said video will no doubt increase the chances of world war, because you have denied your viewers access to the truth - that the beheadings were so obviously fake they could have only been produced by Israel and the greater Jewish community that owns Youtube, to cause war.

You removed the beheading video on grounds that it was just too gory. But what about this exploding head video, which you allowed over 2 million views of? It is not gore you fear, it is the truth you fear, and I pray for the day this truth and all other truths you have buried via Youtube and other venues are finally revealed and the greater Jewish community is held accountable on non Jewish terms.

You crave and rejoice in the deaths of children which your wars cause. And if that is not enough, you steal countless children via train scams, "Child Protective Services" scams, ANY SCAM YOU CAN to feed your organ thefts and sacrifice rituals. It is amazing what 20 million people can do to this world when their end goal is completely absent all truth and formed of pure evil, the Jewish community achieves a lot simply because it is so evil that the rest of us cannot even comprehend the possibilities allowed by such a frame of mind,

Ultimately I guess you won this time around, but I would like to ask a little question here -

Your little tribe only has the power it has right now because of the intellect, technology, and manpower it manipulates in the goy community. What is going to happen when your parasitic ventures cause the death of the greater Goy machine? What are you going to do when your control is lost simply because you took too much, lied too much, and destroyed too much? You are ALL living wealthy now, on the backs of the goy. There is no such thing as a poor Jew, even among the invalids. If your quest for supremacy continues on its current path, eventually YOU will have to start plowing the fields just to survive after you have destroyed everything else simply by not knowing when to stop asking for more, would it not instead be best for you to BACK OFF ON AT LEAST THE BULLSHIT BEHEADINGS, and enjoy the free ride you get at the top right now?

I can affirmatively state the answer is NO. And I will tell you why.

At the time I did the Fukushima report, I had a vending business. And in that business, you learn about the behavior of thieves, which the Jewish community definitely is. Thieves do not know the limits to taking. If they can get away with stealing, the stealing will keep increasing until the thefts reach 100 percent and everything fails. Thieves lack the intellect needed to see the future results of their actions, and will keep taking until that which they take from is destroyed by being taken from, and when it all fails, they lack the intellect to understand why it all failed.

The Jewish community has a repeat history of stealing until societies they take from are destroyed. Though it is not recorded in history, I believe they probably even destroyed the pharoes of Egypt, they definitely did Greece and Rome in. And when a society they take from fails from the robberies, the Jews then sit and cry as the victim, wondering why they got stuck in the wilderness, and blame it on everyone else. "Cast out" to the Jew simply means "we took until we destroyed it all, and therefore had nothing to stay for, POOR US". That is reality that never gets recorded, because you at least walk away from those you destroy intact, and are able to keep records. Those you leave in ruins simply vanish without a trace.

GO FOR IT with Youtube, you have a fine shining model there to take from, if only from world intellect. Go ahead and ban or remove cold hard truth that does not fit your agenda, you only accelerate your demise, and unlike the past, this time those who survive the destruction will be heavily weighted with people who were smart enough to see it all, to know anti-semitism is B.S. and that it is perfectly right to exact revenge on a community that caused the destruction of something as great as Western Civilization; where will you go and how will you defend yourselves when even the technology that civilization created, technology you depend on to enforce tyranny, fails?

Why is Israel seeming to try to meet a world war deadline?

Permalink

The zionists are spewing more lies than ever, with two fake beheadings, a story about 11 stolen jet liners from Libya which could not possibly be true, the theft of flight 370 and subsequent shoot down of "MH17" with rotting corpses as passengers, and many many more obvious lies and acts of desperation. All during a blood moon tetrad, which has, in the past, had a history of spelling disaster for Israel. I have a hunch Israel and zionists in general are lashing out at reality, hoping to make this tetrad beneficial rather than a time of disaster. And they will fail.

One has to question why the beheadings were so poorly done, and the Isis scam so transparent. This time around it is all going different than before, the ISIS scam is being fronted at a time when the world is hitting a peak of awareness towards this type of false flag effort. The fact that even one government leader has stood up and stated in no uncertain terms that ISIS is sponsored by the West means a tipping point has been reached, where if the lie continues to be pushed there could well be a very hot war, possibly even nuclear and the wrong people will be targeted, at least according to zion.

Why would Israel and the zionists push hate disinfo so hard now, beyond a level that has any rational basis?

I believe it is for religious reasons related to the current blood moon tetrad, which is now in progress. I believe they believe they now have to meet a do or die timeline and spark world war 3 or a massive die off via ebola - something, anything to put the world in complete disarray, or Israel will be finished before the tetrad is over. The world is onto their lies, and

What does Russia think of this? Quite frankly, I am embarrassed. This level of work makes American/Israelis look STUPID. You mean to tell me they are trying to front a war with this?

it is a matter of time before Israel fails to survive it. Interesting it is that ISIS has never threatened Israel, is it not?

They are crazy, religiously fanatic, and that makes them VERY dangerous

I had initially dismissed the redacted Fox news report about a new 911 happening this year as being possibly spurious, but with another obvious lie - the theft of 11 long range jumbo jets from Tripoli airport to front a new false flag with, a new 911 appears all the more probable.

Images of the Tripoli airport attack, after which it was reported by ONE news source that these jets got stolen, (to provide a plausible front for a new 911) pretty much prove that there is no way anything flew out of there at the hands of the attackers:

The bottom line is that too many airplanes were destroyed or damaged in the attack for 11 to fly out for a future terror attack, and of those that survived, many were flown to other airports for repairs and were fully accounted for. Additionally, during the initial reports, There was no mention whatsoever of any planes getting stolen only that many were damaged or destroyed. This leaves approximately ZERO for terrorists to truly get their hands on for a new 911.

Once again, like a fake beheading, the liars do not know when to stop lying and spew in a way that is easily busted. Had they kept the stolen number down to perhaps three planes, it may have been believable and able to survive scrutiny. I believe I have shown here that the 11 stolen planes HAS TO BE FAKE, let's see if they continue to push the obviously fake. That will be key to knowing if, for real, Israel is going to do another 911.

Chechnyan leader: Isis has no relation to Islam

Permalink

The following is a translation of an instagram from Ramzan Kaydyrov which was sent after ISIS made threats against Russia while sitting in two of the jets Russia supplied Syria with:

Ramzan Kaydyrov:

"Terrorists from Syria, who call themselves the "Islamic state", expressed a childish threat to go to war in Chechnya and the Caucasus. They say only what the secret services of the West tell them to. These bastards have no relation to Islam. They are outspoken enemies of Muslims around the world. These naive people decided to threaten Russia and Chechnya with two stolen planes made by Russia.

They can sit in two thousand aircraft, and none will reach Russia. All who are under the control of the United States, the country which has announced sanctions against Russia have achieved nothing, and these same unwashed criminals decided to distinguish themselves by taking on the role of the thug.

I state with full responsibility that anyone who has an idea to express a threat against Russia and name President Putin while doing so will be destroyed where he sits.

We will not wait until he sits behind the wheel of an aircraft. He will go to the place where his brothers rot along with terrorist Khattab, Abu Walid, and other messengers of the West.

I want to remind everyone who is planning something against our country, that Russia has worthy sons, ready to fulfill any order, and will wring the neck of any enemy in his own lair, wherever he may be. And we will be happy to rid the world of these scum. The militants in Syria and Iraq represent nothing, including themselves. They are bandits, trained and armed by the United States and the West to destroy with their own hands the strong and resource-rich Islamic countries.

They have no idea what the Quran and the Sunnah really means. I emphasize that they will end their days under the hot sun in Syria and Iraq, and in the first instant of death will meet their eternal flames of Hell."

Iceland's Bardabunga may be the next Pinatubo

If Bardabunga blows, it is likely to surpass Mt St Helens and rival Pinatubo. If that happens in conjunction with the already cold weather we might see cold not seen since the great blast at Krakatoa. BLOCKBUSTER: Top level intelligence people call

B.S. on Russian invasion

Take a look at this Aug. 30 memo to German Chancellor Merkel challenging the reliability of Ukrainian and U.S. media claims about a Russian “invasion.” This was put out by top intelligence people: William Binney, former Technical Director, World Geopolitical & Military Analysis, NSA; co-founder, SIGINT Automation Research Center (ret.)

Larry Johnson, CIA & State Department (ret.)

David MacMichael, National Intelligence Council (ret.)

Ray McGovern, former US Army infantry/intelligence officer & CIA analyst (ret.)

Elizabeth Murray, Deputy National Intelligence Officer for Middle East (ret.)

Todd E. Pierce, MAJ, US Army Judge Advocate (Ret.)

Coleen Rowley, Division Counsel & Special Agent, FBI (ret.)

Ann Wright, Col., US Army (ret.); Foreign Service Officer (resigned)

MEMORANDUM FOR: Angela Merkel, Chancellor of Germany

SUBJECT: Ukraine and NATO

We the undersigned are long-time veterans of U.S. intelligence. We take the unusual step of writing this open letter to you to ensure that you have an opportunity to be briefed on our views prior to the NATO summit on Sept. 4-5.

You need to know, for example, that accusations of a major Russian “invasion” of Ukraine appear not to be supported by reliable intelligence. Rather, the “intelligence” seems to be of the same dubious, politically “fixed” kind used 12 years ago to “justify” the U.S.-led attack on Iraq.

We saw no credible evidence of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq then; we see no credible evidence of a Russian invasion now. Twelve years ago, former Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder, mindful of the flimsiness of the evidence on Iraqi WMD, refused to join in the attack on Iraq. In our view, you should be appropriately suspicious of charges made by the U.S. State Department and NATO officials alleging a Russian invasion of Ukraine.

President Barack Obama tried on Aug. 29 to cool the rhetoric of his own senior diplomats and the corporate media, when he publicly described recent activity in the Ukraine, as “a continuation of what’s been taking place for months now ... it’s not really a shift.”

Obama, however, has only tenuous control over the policymakers in his administration – who, sadly, lack much sense of history, know little of war, and substitute anti-Russian invective for a policy. One year ago, hawkish State Department officials and their friends in the media very nearly got Mr. Obama to launch a major attack on Syria based, once again, on “intelligence” that was dubious, at best.

Largely because of the growing prominence of, and apparent reliance on, intelligence we believe to be spurious, we think the possibility of hostilities escalating beyond the borders of Ukraine has increased significantly over the past several days. More important, we believe that this likelihood can be avoided, depending on the degree of judicious skepticism you and other European leaders bring to the NATO summit next week.

Experience With Untruth

Hopefully, your advisers have reminded you of NATO Secretary General Anders Fogh Rasmussen’s checkered record for credibility. It appears to us that Rasmussen’s speeches continue to be drafted by Washington. This was abundantly clear on the day before the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq when, as Danish Prime Minister, he told his Parliament: “Iraq has weapons of mass destruction. This is not something we just believe. We know.”

Photos can be worth a thousand words; they can also deceive. We have considerable experience collecting, analyzing, and reporting on all kinds of satellite and other imagery, as well as other kinds of intelligence. Suffice it to say that the images released by NATO on Aug. 28 provide a very flimsy basis on which to charge Russia with invading Ukraine. Sadly, they bear a strong resemblance to the images shown by Colin Powell at the UN on Feb. 5, 2003, that, likewise, proved nothing.

That same day, we warned President Bush that our former colleague analysts were “increasingly distressed at the politicization of intelligence” and told him flatly, “Powell’s presentation does not come close” to justifying war. We urged Mr. Bush to “widen the discussion ... beyond the circle of those advisers clearly bent on a war for which we see no compelling reason and from which we believe the unintended consequences are likely to be catastrophic.”

Consider Iraq today. Worse than catastrophic.

Although President Vladimir Putin has until now showed considerable reserve on the conflict in the Ukraine, it behooves us to remember that Russia, too, can “shock and awe.” In our view, if there is the slightest chance of that kind of thing eventually happening to Europe because of Ukraine, sober-minded leaders need to think this through very carefully.

If the photos that NATO and the U.S. have released represent the best available “proof” of an invasion from Russia, our suspicions increase that a major effort is under way to fortify arguments for the NATO summit to approve actions that Russia is sure to regard as provocative. Caveat emptor is an expression with which you are no doubt familiar. Suffice it to add that one should be very cautious regarding what Mr. Rasmussen, or even Secretary of State John Kerry, are peddling.

We trust that your advisers have kept you informed regarding the crisis in Ukraine from the beginning of 2014, and how the possibility that Ukraine would become a member of NATO is anathema to the Kremlin. According to a Feb. 1, 2008 cable (published by WikiLeaks) from the U.S. embassy in Moscow to Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, U.S. Ambassador William Burns was called in by Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, who explained Russia’s strong opposition to NATO membership for Ukraine.

Lavrov warned pointedly of “fears that the issue could potentially split the country in two, leading to violence or even, some claim, civil war, which would force Russia to decide whether to intervene.” Burns gave his cable the unusual title, “NYET MEANS NYET: RUSSIA’S NATO ENLARGEMENT REDLINES,” and sent it off to Washington with IMMEDIATE precedence. Two months later, at their summit in Bucharest NATO leaders issued a formal declaration that “Georgia and Ukraine will be in NATO.”

On Aug. 29, Ukrainian Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk used his Facebook page to claim that, with the approval of Parliament that he has requested, the path to NATO membership is open. Yatsenyuk, of course, was Washington’s favorite pick to become prime minister after the Feb. 22 coup d’etat in Kiev.

“Yats is the guy,” said Assistant Secretary of State Victoria Nuland a few weeks before the coup, in an intercepted telephone conversation with U.S. Ambassador to Ukraine Geoffrey Pyatt. You may recall that this is the same conversation in which Nuland said, “Fuck the EU.”

Timing of the Russian “Invasion”

The conventional wisdom promoted by Kiev just a few weeks ago was that Ukrainian forces had the upper hand in fighting the anti-coup federalists in southeastern Ukraine, in what was largely portrayed as a mop-up operation. But that picture of the offensive originated almost solely from official government sources in Kiev. There were very few reports coming from the ground in southeastern Ukraine. There was one, however, quoting Ukrainian President Petro

Poroshenko, that raised doubt about the reliability of the government's portrayal.

According to the "press service of the President of Ukraine" on Aug. 18, Poroshenko called for a "regrouping of Ukrainian military units involved in the operation of power in the East of the country. ... Today we need to do the rearrangement of forces that will defend our territory and continued army offensives," said Poroshenko, adding, "we need to consider a new military operation in the new circumstances."

If the "new circumstances" meant successful advances by Ukrainian government forces, why would it be necessary to "regroup," to "rearrange" the forces? At about this time, sources on the ground began to report a string of successful attacks by the anti-coup federalists against government forces. According to these sources, it was the government army that was starting to take heavy casualties and lose ground, largely because of ineptitude and poor leadership.

Ten days later, as they became encircled and/or retreated, a ready-made excuse for this was to be found in the "Russian invasion." That is precisely when the fuzzy photos were released by NATO and reporters like the New York Times' Michael Gordon were set loose to spread the word that "the Russians are coming." (Michael Gordon was one of the most egregious propagandists promoting the war on Iraq.)

No Invasion – But Plenty Other Russian Support

The anti-coup federalists in southeastern Ukraine enjoy considerable local support, partly as a result of government artillery strikes on major population centers. And we believe that Russian support probably has been pouring across the border and includes, significantly, excellent battlefield intelligence. But it is far from clear that this support includes tanks and artillery at this point – mostly because the federalists have been better led and surprisingly successful in pinning down government forces.

At the same time, we have little doubt that, if and when the federalists need them, the Russian tanks will come.

This is precisely why the situation demands a concerted effort for a ceasefire, which you know Kiev has so far been delaying. What is to be done at this point? In our view, Poroshenko and Yatsenyuk need to be told flat-out that membership in NATO is not in the cards – and that NATO has no intention of waging a proxy war with Russia – and especially not in support of the rag-tag army of Ukraine. Other members of NATO need to be told the same thing.

Ebola outbreak a scam?

Permalink

This could be entirely true, and a ruse to get people to accept a tainted vaccine. As usual, whenever I post something, the rule is AVOID ALL VACCINATION MANDATES, especially when they are associated with an outbreak. Vaccines have been issued in the past with the sole intent of destroying populations and have been miraculously caught and stopped during shipping.

Baxter's tainted batch, referred to in the article Tainted nightmare is a prime example of an outright failed attempt by the Rothchild / Agenda 21 crowd to cause a massive die off of the population of Europe. Had it not been caught by Czech company Biotest, there would have been massive casualties in Europe and I am not talking a few thousand. So the zio clan has already tried to murder millions, Baxter's so-called "mistake" could not possibly have been as stated, and you can, based on history, pretty much rely on the fact that any mandated vaccine will not be as advertized.

The current protocols in place for this "ebola outbreak" do not match either reality for a genuine outbreak or a genuine effort to contain one. There is definitely the smell of a rat with this one which is precisely why I have so clearly stated that people should buy vitamin C, which is mega cheap, easy to do and highly likely to work if this is all real and being intentionally made worse and if it is all a ruse you lost NOTHING, and only spent $20 or so for an over supply of vitamin C that will be around for the next 10 colds. Not a loss.

Do not give them what they want with this, one way or another there is evil behind it and they need your fear to make their plans work. Get what you need ahead of time and if things get hairy sit at home. Obviously have extra food ready for this, and make it your normal stuff you will eat disaster or not. If the disaster is real and successfully implemented, you will not have a job to worry about. Afterward it will all boil down to picking up pieces, and there will be a lot of excess if any real die off is actually triggered.

In Latin American and Arab/Muslim countries it will be perfectly possible to avoid any mandated vaccines just by staying home because the homes are robust and very resistant to assault, so there is not likely to be a team of home invaders going around kicking in doors to find people hiding out to avoid the vaccine. In Europe and America however, homes are paper thin ornament boxes that are easy to invade, (this was all by design) and if somehow you do prevent people from entering, chances are they will just burn it down. So bugging out might be a more appropriate approach to things.

The most important thing in all of this will be to realize any vaccine will be a trap, they tried with the swine flu and failed. Ebola may be exactly the same thing, so make a few cheap preparations, wait, and use your head. The time to bug out obviously would not be now, wait for talk of an imminent mandated vaccine, and then do what it takes to avoid it. This time the problem is not going to be squalene, they have had 6 years to come up with something worse, chances are it will be the phage.

And now, in case you have not seen it, the following article surpassed everything else published by this web site COMBINED.

Date: Monday, August 10, 2009, 3:58 AM

This article went viral and received over 300 million reads, got translated to all languages, and triggered policy changes in numerous nations. The bottom line is that it proved accurate and survived Lancet and Pub Med, and though it is probably outdated now the main theme is still relevant. Five years after release, it can still be found online in many languages.

Tainted nightmare

"The H1N1 vaccination program, when put into the same frame as the engineered virus to go with it, appears to be a clear effort to divide humanity into two groups; those who have lost their intellect, health and sexuality via a tainted vaccination, and those who have not and are therefore superior."

I met the story about the swine flu with great skepticism; it played like a story line in a B movie - Students go abroad for spring break. Students get the virus. Students bring it home. Worldwide pandemic starts. The story line was unbelievable, and I knew from day one that there was either no virus at all, and that it was just a "wag the dog", or that a manufactured outbreak was intentionally released and underway.

Unfortunately the latter was true, and now we have an entirely new bug on our hands. It has never been seen before, and virologists have been quoted saying "where the hell it got all these genes from we don't know." Extensive analysis of the virus has revealed genes from the original 1918 flu, the avian flu, and two new H3N2 viruses from Eurasia. All evidence points to the fact that the swine flu is indeed a genetically engineered virus.

This article is the result of a team effort intended to explore what the motive for releasing it may be, to warn you in advance of things to come.

The first attempt

In Feb 2009, Baxter, a major manufacturer of vaccines, sent the seasonal flu shot to 18 different countries with live unattenuated H5N1 bird flu. When the Czech company Biotest was assigned to test the vaccine on live animals for the Czech government, they realized something was wrong when the test animals died. The alarm went out to all others who had received it, fortunately before it was administered. Upon follow up examination of the vaccine the live virus was revealed, had no one caught Baxter's tainted batch, we would now be in the midst of a pandemic with massive numbers of dead.

Baxter was not prosecuted or punished in any way for this, even though their operational BSL3 (bio safety level 3) protocol would have stopped such contamination from being possible. The safety protocol, combined with the potency and volume of the virus in the shots clearly shows that the contamination was intentional, and that indeed an attempt to kill millions was stopped simply because ONE country paid attention to what it was getting. The protocol made it technically impossible for the virus to make the leap from the research department to the vaccine manufacturing department, which could never have had H5N1 show up there due to any reason other than willful intent.

One would think that Baxter would have been put out of business for making such an "error" but the opposite is true, which begs many questions, such as how did the live bird flu end up in millions of doses of vaccine? Why were the ingredients of the vaccine formulated to allow the virus to survive fully potent en route? Why was Baxter not prosecuted or punished in any way? Instead of rightfully blackballing the company, the World Health Organization has rewarded Baxter with a contract to make a large portion of the "Swine flu" vaccinations set to be distributed world wide this fall. How on earth could that be?

The main focus

Let's switch to another aspect of vaccines, the real focus of this article, which is the plan to destroy our intellect, our health and our sexuality via a mass world wide vaccination campaign. With the use of special additives called adjuvants, manufacturers are able to increase the number of possible doses that can be made on time for the fall flu season. But though there are many safe adjuvants which can be added, they are adding one - squalene, which has been shown to cause prolonged systemic immune response against the squalene itself, which results in reduced fertility, reduced intellect and reduced life span.

Squalene is an important molecule in the body. It is a precursor to many different oils and hormones, and is needed for proper brain function, fertility and also plays an important role in protecting cells from aging and mutation. Anything which affects your natural squalene can have a major negative impact on your health.

Because the squalene will be injected in the presence of a pathogen during the H1N1 vaccination, it will cause an immune response against not only the pathogen, but to the squalene itself. Squalene is a precursor molecule which is essential for the production of many hormones including all of the male and female sexual hormones. Squalene is also a precursor to many of the neurochemical receptors prevalent in the nervous system and when the immune system is programmed to attack squalene, it causes irreversible neuronal and neuromuscular damage which can range from a loss of intellect and autism to more serious disorders such as Lou Gehrig's disease and systemic autoimmune diseases and possibly brain tumors.

In independent studies where squalene laced vaccines were injected into guinea pigs, the resultant autoimmune disorders killed 14 out of 15. A later test, to verify the results had the same outcome.

When first injected via the anthrax vaccine in Gulf War 1, it permanently disabled many of the soldiers who received it, due to the effects now known as the Gulf War Syndrome. 95 percent of the soldiers who recieved the anthrax vaccine have been found to have antibodies to squalene. Few of the soldiers who recieved the vaccine remained healthy and do not have the antibodies whether or not they were deployed. None of the soldiers who did not receive the vaccine have the antibodies, even those who fought in Iraq. Squalene antibody related deaths total 6.5 percent of the vaccinated group.

It takes approximately a year for the effects to fully manifest themselves because that much time passes before the nervous system and brain deplete the reserves of Squalene that are out of the reach of the immune system and only after the reserves are gone will cell injury begin. This takes the pressure off vaccine manufacturers who deny any wrongdoing for a response so delayed. And with Congress passing legislation granting immunity to any corporations who cause damage with their vaccines, the outlook is evermore dark.

After examining the components of the H1N1 flu vaccine we can only conclude that it is not intended to treat the flu at all, quite differently, it is intended to:

1. Reduce intelligence
2. Reduce life span
3. Reduce fertility
4. Cause numerous deaths

For if it was intended for any other purpose, Squalene and other adjuvants beyond the scope of this article would not be present. Furthermore, the scope of this article only covers squalene, and we believe that because there are so many ways to induce autoimmune responses equally devastating via other injectable formulations coupled with the obviously intentional shipment of a pandemic by Baxter that the credibility of vaccines is forever tainted and the trust in the greater medical community may have been irreparably broken. Baxter should be out of business, the fact that they are not is damning.

The trust is broken

Through a manufactured pandemic and damaging vaccine the world health organization along with major manufacturers in the pharmaceutical industry have demonstrated clear intent to damage all of mankind. For what purpose is difficult to determine, but it would be safe to assume that there will be those who have been told and know better than to take one of these tainted vaccines, and as a result they will be of superior intelligence and health when put in perspective with those who receive them. The H1N1 vaccination program, when put into the same frame as the obviously engineered virus to go with it, appears to be a clear effort to divide humanity into two groups, those who have lost their intellect, health and sexuality via a tainted vaccination, and those who have not and are therefore superior. It can now be reasoned that it is no longer safe to take ANY vaccination for any reason; please, do not let them get your children.

If you ever see a video of major figures getting theirs, keep in mind that not all shots will be created equal!

Black child snatching SUV's in Chiapas

Permalink

A man wrote from Chiapas saying he has never seen thousands of children on trains, and had a HUGE piece of information that is dam busting -

He said that child thefts in Chiapas have gone off the charts, especially with pregnant teen girls, and that in Chiapas it is being done with black SUV's with tinted windows, some of which are painted to look like police vehicles. Chiapas is very far south in Mexico, so what is probably going on is that the children for the past while have been tricked into coming across the border to catch trains, where they are subsequently stolen by child thieves in these vehicles. That would explain precisely why children are indeed vanishing, but they are not and NEVER AT ANY POINT EVER were on the trains as claimed by the scamming American MSM. And now, even Drudge is saying it is impossible to ride the trains because the Federal Police "suddenly" started staging raids on these trains. WELL, I have a little news for Drudge - The federalis ALWAYS nailed these trains, and multiple state and private security forces always did as well, there were never massive numbers of people on them as a result.

Obviously then, since the American media ran the trains scam as a scam from DAY ONE, the Jewish community that owns that media is complicit in these child thefts and is directly associated with the people in these black child snatching SUV's, and ran a train cover story to keep the heat off of the child thieves driving them. There is NO OTHER ANSWER, since the Jewish community owns the press, and that same community used that press to run an information scam, THEY ARE THE ONES DIRECTLY INVOLVED IN A HUGE CHILD SNATCHING RING. If I, with a budget of $1,000 could get the story right, they certainly could have with their multiple millions as well. HOW COULD THEY HAVE POSSIBLY SCREWED THIS UP, OTHER THAN WILLFUL INTENT?

And worse? The people being taken meet the religious requirements for child sacrifice rituals, and if you get a pregnant girl from a child sacrifice standpoint it is double value, taking two at once with the unborn child being worth more in a sacrifice ritual than the mother. For what other reason would pregnant teen girls be the primary target? What about that blood moon tetrad? Is this Israel's way of getting through it?

You, The Jewish Community, are stealing these children. You are BUSTED FROM START TO FINISH, WHERE ARE THEY GOING?

1. Into child sacrifice rituals, which you cannot deny and need children who are classified as white and Christian. You got busted for using Child Protective Services in America to get your children from, even Alex Jones got onto that theft scam, so you had to shut that venue down. Interesting it is that so shortly after Alex busted you, this huge lie about children on trains was hatched IN A REGION OF THE WORLD WHERE THE CHILDREN, DESPITE BEING HISPANIC, ARE CLASSIFIED BY YOUR COMMUNITY AS BEING WHITE AND CHRISTIAN AND THEREFORE MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF YOUR SACRIFICIAL RITUALS

2. My guess is that a fair number are being used as slaves as well. But let me get back to the child sacrifice thing - it is well documented that you are taking large numbers of pregnant teen women. WHY PREGNANT? SO YOU HAVE ACCESS TO INFANTS FOR YOUR DAMN SACRIFICES.

And HOW DO I KNOW these children really are vanishing, and subsequently not making it to America, as proven by their absense on these trains, YOUR REPORTED MODE OF TRANSIT?

“During this research, I’ve been asking expats how ‘gringos’ are treated and a woman from Canada who is in Managua, Nicaragua replied back by email and said that this past 6 months or so, Nicaraguan mothers have been warning their kids to stay away from gringos, especially women and ESPECIALLY ones claiming to work for NGO’s or missionary types. Apparently, there have been a lot of “runaways” and young pregnant teens going missing and the locals there are ‘very suspicious’ that they’re being taken by these people. Add to that SUV's now, what happens when they get to Mexico.

And if the children are indeed being taken, and they are not and NEVER WERE on these trains, WHERE DID THEY REALLY GO?

DEAR JEWISH COMMUNITY: you have a LOT to explain, a fact your SCAMMING WHOLLY OWNED MEDIA just hung you for by being caught in an inexplicable lie.

Yellowstone erupting?

Rumor has it that Yellowstone is going to blow next week. My take? Rumors are spewed by knitting teams during gossip sessions and if you want a great vacation, go explore the geysers at Yellowstone, it is an amazing place I have been to multiple times. I seriously doubt it will blow while you are there, and if it does I promise you will not care.

From the Yellowstone staff:

We have received enough concerned emails and phone calls that we've spent some time tracking down a few of the statements made on various "alternative Internet news sources."

- 1) First, everyone should know that geological activity, including earthquakes and ground uplift/subsidence is well within historical norms and seismicity is actually a bit low at present.
- 2) Concern over road closures is much overblown. There's been one road closure of a small side road - just over three miles long - that was closed for two days. As one can imagine, it is not easy to maintain roads that pass over thermal areas where ground temperatures can approach those of boiling water. Roads at Yellowstone often need repair because of damage by thermal features as well as extreme cold winter conditions.
- 3) The park has not been evacuated. This one is pretty easy to verify by everyone. If the Old Faithful webcam shows people, or if news articles are coming out about a hobbyist's remote control helicopter crashing into a hot spring, Yellowstone is certainly open for business.
- 4) No volcanologists have stated that Yellowstone is likely to erupt this week, this month or this year. In one recent article, a name was attributed to a "senior volcanologist", but that person does not appear to exist, and a geologist with that name assures us that he did not supply any quotes regarding Yellowstone.
- 5) Finally, we note that those who've kept track of Yellowstone over the past decade or so, have seen a constant stream of "predictions" regarding imminent eruptions at Yellowstone. Many have had specific dates in mind, none had a scientific basis, and none have come true.

CONCLUSION:

Rumors are spewed by knitting teams during gossip sessions and if you want a great vacation, go explore the geysers at Yellowstone, it is an amazing place I have been to multiple times. I seriously doubt it will blow while you are there, and if it does I promise you will not care.

Ebola update (long overdue)

Permalink

During the course of practically any viral infection, vitamin C needs go WAY UP, and in the case of ebola, they go SKY HIGH. So high that all conventional wisdom with regard to vitamin C is irrelevant. The dosings I have below are absolute minimums. Remember, that for as long as ebola is not in your area, do not waste your vitamin C supply by taking more than a tablet per day. If it comes to your area, as a precaution, take 4 or 5 grams per day until you get symptoms, THEN proceed with taking more. This is to preserve your supply until it is really needed

Here are the dosings.

These dosings are based upon extended observation of a puppy with parvo, and how much vitamin C was needed to stop the bleeding in a puppy that had the doggy version of ebola, (I know, Parvovirus is not even close to being the same structurally but it does the same thing - causes a 90 percent mortality rate in untreated puppies over the course of 3 or 4 days, with death caused by massive hemorrhaging.) It is a hemorrhagic virus. I know there will be a few prudes out there who will say this is meaningless in relation to ebola, OK, I

If I dosed the puppy with 125 mg/KG daily of ascorbic acid, there was reduced but still noticeable internal bleeding. If I dosed the puppy with 125 mg/KG ROSE HIP vitamin C daily, it stopped all bleeding. So rose hip vitamin C works better. But if I dosed the puppy with 175 mg/KG daily of ascorbic acid, this also stopped all bleeding, so ascorbic acid is cheaper at that rate. If I discontinued dosing, life threatening bleeding occurred (and obviously the puppy rapidly got a 175mg/KG dose, which again would immediately stop all bleeding.) It was like vitamin C flipped a switch between life and death for that puppy. Now, two weeks into this (a long time for parvo) I can skip heard you. Do nothing and die then.

He hated the vitamin C, but did not hate me for doing this after it was done.

jimstonefreelance.com

dosing and nothing serious happens. During the entire time, as long as the puppy got it's vitamin C it ate and drank normally, and had only slight symptoms of being a little bit sick. Prior to trying vitamin C, (at the end of day two of the bleeding early on) the puppy was seriously dehydrated and close to death. Vitamin C caused a rapid reversal of this condition.

Vets will say this has to be bogus, because dogs make their own vitamin C. My response? YES, at a rate of 18 mg/KG daily, far below what is needed when a serious illness sets in.

So, now we have two things - a practically assured way to keep any puppy from dying of parvo (a breakthrough by itself), and a possible minimum reference for vitamin C dosing for ebola.

ABSOLUTE MINIMUM DOSING: 200 mg/KG (91 mg/pound) for people. This means that if you weigh 10 pounds, you need a gram a day. If you weigh 100 pounds, you need 8.2 grams per day. A 50 KG woman will need 10 grams. And these are minimums, it will not hurt at all to go much much higher with the dosings.

I experimented with that puppy to find out right where the threshold was. It is 175 (shot down it's throat) plus 18 milligrams/KG the dog naturally produced by itself daily so to keep it all simple just go with 200 mg/kg.

How vitamin C works to stop the damage from ebola (though vitamin C is NOT a cure)

First of all, as anyone who knows about scurvy can state, vitamin C helps blood vessel walls keep their strength. But there is something far more serious at play with ebola that vitamin C impedes. Something even more sinister than blood vessel weakening happens when ebola depletes ALL vitamin C, and that is a greatly accelerated release of blood vessel damaging cytokine IL-6. Any medical professional will be able to quickly look up the fact that vitamin C impedes the release of cytokine IL-6, which ebola causes severe releases of in blood vessel walls. Once released in huge amounts, IL-6 further irritates blood vessel walls to such an extent it can blow holes in them, and this, combined with the already weakened condition from a lack of vitamin C will cause many vessels to rupture.

In short, vitamin C is like a magic ebola bullet that not only curtails the release of blood vessel damaging cytokine IL-6, it also, at the same time, makes blood vessels return at least to normal strength (and possibly beyond with very high dosings.) These two things working together make vitamin C the probable best first line of defense against ebola that is possible.

But there is more to this story than that Since IL-6 plays a huge role in damaging blood vessels, it is important to stop its release. And there are some very simple foods that can be eaten that facilitate this. The first is green tea. Green tea can curtail cytokine IL-6 release by 21 percent (which pales compared to vitamin C, but would be a bonus). Of similar value are apples, cinnamon, most berries, choke cherries, pomegranite, olive oil, flax seed oil and fish oil.

You should avoid caffeine and chocolate, because though both have the potential to help in some ways, they also have the potential to totally offset all benefit in everything else eaten (but this has not been fully studied out by anyone with regard to ebola as far as I know of,) it is just that doctors who know this a whole lot better than I do say the chemistry could possibly go very negatively, so to be safe, avoid caffeine and chocolate.

The foods mentioned above pretty much round out the list as far as I know, and further playing around with things like garlic (which is great for practically anything) and hot peppers, ginseng and other blood thinning foods will probably be detrimental with a hemorrhagic fever.

The bottom line is that if ebola does take off, those in the know do not just have to sit in fear and wait for death to come. Diet and vitamin C can easily make the difference between practically living normally through it all, or dying.

AND A VERY IMPORTANT NOTE:

Unscrupulous scammers are EVERYWHERE who will try to sell you this that and hay from an old barn as an ebola cure, there is a lot of evil out there and I strongly suggest you avoid ALL OF IT, what is here is probably #1 above and beyond any other hope (and I cannot profit from this at all.) Additionally, it is VERY IMPORTANT to note that the doctor who gave me the lead on Vitamin C and ebola has told me repeatedly that my recommended dosings above are too low, so make sure you have a LOT of vitamin C laying around just in case you need to go far beyond what I have recommended here, and as I have always said, keep your current dosing down to no more than 1 tablet per day at this time, until there is a very good reason to start taking large amounts of vitamin C (to avoid wasting it). There have been a few doctors out there who have hopped on this issue, to smash the word that Vitamin C actually may work to prevent death from ebola. To them I have to say, PROVE ME WRONG. I may not be a doctor, but I am also not medically illiterate and know legitimate work when I see it, and the above came directly from other doctors who were intrigued, and said THE CHEMISTRY SURE FITS.

To the thinking crowd: Is $20 too much to spend on a large amount of cheap vitamin C purchased in advance as a just in case? So what if for some obscure reason no one calculated it ends up not working, WHAT DID IT COST YOU? Remember, the same doctors who will speak out against this will load your baby up with Thimerosal or a brain eating vaccine administered genetically engineered phage just because the package said to do it, what do they really know anyway?

The following report, from honest doctors, helps bulldoze the liars and adds a LOT of detail.

I came up with the above independent of the following report (and therefore what I say above varies slightly but is pretty much the same.) The following report adds a ton of detail to what I said above. If you can handle a long read, what they say here is EXCELLENT. I have linked the following report simply because it is obviously accurate, and gets into the tiny details I cannot write in with the limited time I have. I thank these honest doctors for laying out the details so nicely.

(OMNS Aug 20, 2014)

If there were a drug that worked on Ebola you should use it. There isn't. There is only vitamin C. But you must be extremely careful what you believe, because, as it ever was, the Internet is full of dangerous loonies. For coming up to a decade now the OMNS has reported on nutritional therapies; we leave the medical politics to one side and work from the facts. Here are the facts about vitamin C and Ebola.

1. Taking a gram or so of day of vitamin C won't protect you against anything except acute scurvy; it doesn't matter whether the vitamin is liposomal, nano-particles, or even gold-plated. Beware of websites, companies, and Youtube clips making wild and unsubstantiated claims about the efficacy of vitamin C.

2. Clinical reports suggest that taking vitamin C almost to bowel tolerance every day (in divided doses) will help to protect you against all viruses. Reports by independent physicians have been consistent for decades. However, the doctors also stipulated most emphatically that the dose and the way you take it must be right – or it will not work. There is no direct placebo controlled “evidence” that massive doses of vitamin C will work on Ebola, and nobody would volunteer to take part in that study. But massive doses are reported to have helped against every virus it has been pitched against. This includes Polio, Dengue and AIDS, and it even makes vaccination work better. In the 1980s when no other treatment was available it was reported that full blown AIDS could be reversed and the patient brought back to reasonable health.[i,ii]

At risk or worried about Ebola? This is what you should do.

Vitamin C

Vitamin C is the primary antioxidant in the diet. Most people do not take enough to be healthy. While this is true of many nutrients, vitamin C is a special case. Ignore governments telling you that you only need about 100 mg a day and can get this amount from food. The required amount of vitamin C varies your state of health. A normal adult in perfect health may need only a small intake, say 500 mg per day, but more is needed when someone is even slightly under the weather. Similarly, to prevent illness, the intake needs to be increased.

The intake for an otherwise healthy person to have a reasonable chance of avoiding a common cold is in the region of 8-10 grams (8,000-10,000 mg) a day. This is about ten times what corporate medicine has tested in their trials on vitamin C and the common cold. Ten grams (10,000 mg) is the minimum pharmacological intake; it may help if you have a slight sore throat but more (much more) may be needed. To get rid of a common cold, you may need anything from 20 to 60 grams (60,000 mg) a day. With influenza the need might be for 100 grams (100,000 mg) a day. Since it varies from person to person, and from illness to illness, the only way to find out is to experiment for yourself.

Dynamic flow

The problem with oral intakes is that healthy people do not absorb vitamin C well due to something Dr Robert Cathcart called bowel tolerance. [iii] Take too much of the vitamin in a single dose and it will cause loose stools. In good health, a person might be able to take a couple of grams at a time without this problem. Strangely, when a person becomes sick they can take far more without this side effect: as much as 20-100+ grams a day, in divided doses. [iv]

High dose vitamin C has a short half-life in the body. The half-life is the time for the level in the blood plasma to fall back to half its concentration. Until recently, some people claimed that the half-life of vitamin C was several weeks. We have shown that this long half-life applies only to very low doses.[v] By contrast, the half-life for high blood levels is only half an hour. This short half-life means that for high dose vitamin C the period between doses needs to be short – a few hours at most.

The aim is to achieve dynamic flow, to get vitamin C flowing continuously through the body. Dynamic flow requires multiple high doses taken throughout the day. When separated in time, each dose is absorbed independently. Two doses of 3 grams, taken 12 hours apart, are absorbed better than 6 grams taken all at once. Multiple large doses, say 3 grams four times a day, produce a steady flow of the vitamin from the gut, into the bloodstream and out, via the urine. Some of the intake is not absorbed into the blood and stays in the gut, as a reserve against the early onset of illness. As illness begins, the body pulls in this “excess” to help fight the virus.

The idea behind dynamic flow is that the body is kept in a reduced (antioxidant) state, using high doses. There is always vitamin C available, to refresh the body and other antioxidants. Each vitamin C molecule (ascorbic acid) has two antioxidant electrons, which it can donate to protect the body. It then becomes oxidised to dehydroascorbate (DHA). This oxidized molecule is then excreted, so the body has gained two antioxidant electrons. The kidneys reabsorb vitamin C, but not DHA; the vitamin C molecule is absorbed, used up, and then the oxidized form is thrown out with the rubbish.

The effectiveness of vitamin C is not directly proportional to the dose; it is non-linear. There is a threshold above which vitamin C becomes highly effective. Below this level, the effect is small; above it, the effect is dramatic. The problem is that no-one can tell you in advance what intake of vitamin C you need. The solution is to take more – more than you think necessary, more than you consider reasonable. The mantra is dose, dose, dose.

Types of Vitamin C

Straightforward, low cost ascorbic acid is the preferred form of supplement. Vendors may try to sell you “better absorbed” forms with minerals or salts such as sodium, potassium or calcium ascorbate, and so on. These are irrelevant, if not counterproductive, for high intakes.

It is worth noting the following:

Timing is more important than form. Two large doses of ascorbic acid taken a little time apart are better absorbed than a single dose of mineral ascorbate.

Mineral ascorbates are salts and do not carry the same number of antioxidant electrons. Ascorbic acid has two electrons to donate while a salt typically has only one. With high doses, the “improved” forms are thus only about half as effective. This is consistent with reports that mineral forms are correspondingly ineffective in combating illness.

Ascorbic acid is a weak acid, much weaker than the hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Mineral ascorbates may be better tolerated, as they make the stomach more alkaline than ascorbic acid. However, an alkaline stomach is not a good idea – there are reasons the body secretes hydrochloric acid into the stomach, including preventing infection. Furthermore, if you are coming down with a haemorrhagic viral infection, mild discomfort will not be something of great concern.

For high intakes, capsules of ascorbic acid are preferable to tablets. This is because tablets are packed with fillers and it is not wise to take massive doses of these chemicals. Check the ingredients – you want to take ascorbic acid and very little else. Bioflavonoids are alright, and the capsules may be made with gelatine or a vegetarian equivalent.

The cheapest way to take ascorbic acid is as powder, dissolved in water. If you do this, use a straw to avoid it getting on the tooth enamel, as it is slightly acidic. You will need a set of accurate electronic scales to monitor the dose. If you do not weigh it carefully, it will be difficult to keep close to bowel tolerance.

Intravenous Vitamin C

Ideally, infected people would be given a continuous intravenous (IV) infusion of massive doses of vitamin C (sodium ascorbate is preferred as ascorbic acid is irritant to veins).

People who are sufficiently ill will not be able to take vitamin C by mouth.

IV provides the highest possible blood levels

IV means continuous drip, not an injection (short half-life)

Unless you are a medical professional who can treat yourself and your family, or are exceptionally rich, IV ascorbate will not be an option in an Ebola outbreak. (Admin insert - and therefore stocking up on cheap ascorbic acid in tablet or powder form will be the thing to do.)

Rectal Vitamin C

Rectal administration of sodium ascorbate is a method that can be used in emergencies, and in developing world circumstances, when IV is unavailable or unsuitable. Nurses can quickly be trained to mix 15-30 g of sodium ascorbate in 250-500 ml clean water, and give it by enema. It can be safely and effectively used in children. An enema also removes from the bowel material that may be challenging. This has been done successfully with aboriginal people in the Australian outback.

Liposomes

In healthy people, liposomes help the absorption of oral vitamin C; in some circumstances this is also true for sick people. However, we need to dispel some popular myths.

In a healthy person, higher blood levels (about 600 microM/L) can be achieved using liposomal vitamin C compared with standard ascorbic acid (about 250 microM/L). We were the first to demonstrate this fact experimentally.[vi] However, the two absorption methods are different and if both are used together the resultant plasma levels are additive (something like $600 + 250 = 850$ microM/L). Since ascorbic acid is much cheaper than liposomal vitamin C, it is cost effective for a healthy person to start with ascorbic acid and top up with liposomes as required.

When a person becomes ill they can absorb massive doses of standard ascorbic acid, using the dynamic flow approach. So if you are sick, taking a gram of liposomal vitamin C instead of a gram of cheap ascorbic acid will provide little extra benefit. Both will be well absorbed, and the liposome contains sodium ascorbate which is less effective. Liposomes only provide added benefit once the sick person has approached bowel tolerance levels, using standard ascorbic acid.

Liposomal vitamin C is NOT more effective than IV for fighting acute infections. This suggestion is unscientific and unsupported by data. We prefer liposomes for chronic infections and cancer, but this does not extend to acute illness. There is also a lot of hype around the fact that liposomes can be absorbed directly into cells. Many liposomes are absorbed from the gut and pass into the liver, where they are stored and the vitamin C released. Liposomes may also float around in the bloodstream, lymph nodes, and so on, waiting to release their contents or be taken up by cells.

But the cells that take up the liposomes are not necessarily those that are most in need of vitamin C. Moreover cells may suffer side effects; liposomes are basically nanotechnology and have additional theoretical issues.

Prevention

To have a reasonable chance of avoiding a major viral infection, a daily intake of at least 10 grams of ascorbic acid is needed. The idea is to start low, taking say 500 -1,000 mg four times a day. Build up the intake to close to bowel tolerance; increased wind and large soft stools will occur before diarrhea signals that bowel tolerance has been exceeded. At this stage, back off the dose a little, to a reasonably comfortable level.

Admin insert - this goes along with my initial advice - take ONE tablet per day until ebola is in your area, when ebola arrives increase this to 4 or 5 grams per day. If you stop having soft stools from over doing it, it means you have a virus (because your body will start taking in the vitamin C) so THEN start taking large amounts. /insert

At the first hint of an infection – feeling unwell, itchy throat, fatigue, and so on – take more ascorbic acid. If the hint of impending sickness is mild, take perhaps 5 grams every half hour or even more frequently. Anything more than a hint of infection, take as large a dose as you feel could be tolerated and follow this by taking 5 grams every half hour. The rule is to take as much as you can without going over the tolerated level: you will probably be taking too little, even though you are trying hard to take a massive dose.

If you are already in dynamic flow and want extra protection, then add liposomal vitamin C. Take it at the same intervals as the ascorbic acid; that is several times a day. The limit is once again bowel tolerance – take too much and it will give you loose stools. This will provide the maximum preventive effect, for the lowest cost.

Admin insert - LOOSE STOOLS ARE THE KEY. If you are not getting diahreea it means you need MORE VITAMIN C. If you are getting diahreea, CUT BACK because you are wasting it.

Treatment

We assume that you are not a medical professional and do not have access to IV ascorbate. However, if IV sodium ascorbate is available, it should be given slowly and as continuously as possible. For children, enemas may be the most practical method (we hope to publish practical instructions for this soon). Medical professionals can deal with such things with little difficulty, but others may do more harm than good.

The first important thing is to start the treatment early. The longer a person waits after the initial symptoms, the less effective the treatment will be. Also if the illness is allowed to develop the sick person may become unable to take anything orally.

Once again, the idea is to get dynamic flow going with as much ascorbic acid as can be tolerated. In this case, the doses are massive. Five to ten grams every half hour, through the day, will provide 120 to 240 grams a day. Even at this high intake, the blood plasma levels may be low or undetectable; at most 250 microM/L will be achieved. So the question then becomes how much additional liposomal vitamin C the patient can tolerate.

A practical approach would be to start with 5 grams of ascorbic acid and a similar amount of liposomal vitamin C in very frequent doses. Remember the key is dose, dose, dose. More vitamin C!

How it Works

The mechanism of action of high dose vitamin C is known and understood. In normal healthy tissues it acts as an antioxidant. In other tissues, it generates hydrogen peroxide, the chemical that platinum blondes use to bleach their hair. This happens in sick and inflamed tissues, for example in a malignant tumour. The process is typically a form of Fenton reaction, generating free radicals. The oxidation and free radicals arising from the hydrogen peroxide kill bacteria and inactivate viruses. In other words, vitamin C acts as a targeted bleach and antiseptic.

Admin insert - IL-6 Cytokine inhibition via vitamin C with regard to ebola is ebola specific, and something these doctors do not know about. But that is largely irrelevant since they at least clearly state here that vitamin C is the key /insert

Vitamin C is unique, because it has low toxicity and can be taken safely in massive amounts. Other antioxidants and supplements will not have a similar effect. Do not be confused and think that Echinacea, for example, will help. Yes, there may be supplements and herbs that provide a little immune system support, but this is Ebola we are talking about – get real!

Note, vitamin C is not some magical antitoxin; this idea is a metaphor. A disease such as Ebola is not caused by toxins that are inactivated by vitamin C. Free radicals are not toxins. Oxidants are not toxins. Vitamin C nearly always acts by transferring electrons, as an oxidant or antioxidant. It is just basic chemistry. Also, it does not matter if you have poor dental hygiene, this will hardly affect how massive intakes of vitamin C tackle an acute viral infection.

Interactions Sugar interferes with the uptake of vitamin C. If you are using vitamin C to combat a viral infection do not eat any sugar or carbohydrates (long chain sugars) or the vitamin C will not be absorbed properly. We stress that this means no sugar and no carbs, at all.

Smoking releases enormous amounts of oxidants and free radicals into the bloodstream. The vitamin C will expend itself, trying to mop up the chemicals from the smoking. We have no moral objections to people smoking: it is a personal choice. However, smoking will hinder even massive doses of vitamin C from preventing infection. Once infected with Ebola, smoking will stop the vitamin C from keeping you alive.

It is sensible also to supplement with a little chelated magnesium, such as magnesium citrate, which helps overcome the (largely theoretical) risk of kidney stones.

The reaction that generates hydrogen peroxide in sick tissues can be enhanced a little by taking selenium with the vitamin C. A little caution is needed as too much selenium will cause diarrhoea, fatigue, garlic breath, and hair and nail loss; severe toxicity can have more severe effects but is hard to achieve. Methylselenocysteine is a less toxic form and this would be our choice. The normal intake is perhaps 100-200 micrograms (0.1-0.2 mg) a day; we would take 400 micrograms a day during an epidemic and up this to 1,000 micrograms (one milligram) a day, at the initial onset of symptoms. It is possible to go up to 3 mg for short periods, with medical supervision.

Other supplements may be synergistic with vitamin C. Alpha-lipoic acid can be taken at reasonably high levels reasonably safely. We would take up to a gram or two a day (1,000-2,000 mg) in the short term. Vitamin K also helps with blood clotting and is safe in the recommended amounts – we would get the highest dose vitamin K2 supplement available. Note vitamin K is contraindicated in those with clotting disease or those on blood thinners such as warfarin.

Contraindications

The only established side effects of ascorbate therapy are wind, loose bowels and chronic good health. There are some contraindications; people with kidney disease, iron overload disease, or glucose-6-phosphatase deficiency should not immediately take high doses of vitamin C. In the setting of an epidemic they can start as we recommend but should increase more cautiously, with appropriate medical monitoring.

Why Put This Out?

People need to know that vitamin C is an option for fighting Ebola, and how it works. There is a great deal of misinformation, particularly on the internet, both from vested interests and from "loonies". Moreover, in an Ebola epidemic vitamin C supplements may be hard to source.

This account is intended for intelligent adults, who can make their own rational decisions and take responsibility for their health. We strongly promote the idea that medicine should be based on rational patients, rather than authoritarian doctors. Doctors are there to provide the information for patients, to help them choose between available options. This is information only – what you decide to do with it is up to you.

In our opinion the use of vitamin C in Ebola is a no-brainer. Get the illness and, it is said, you have at best a 50-50 chance of surviving without vitamin C-based therapy. Corporate medicine has no effective treatment. Furthermore, if a drug were available, it would be untested and almost certainly unavailable to you, dear reader. Vitamin C is considered safe and should do no harm. The cost of treatment is low. The clinical reports of vitamin C in viral infection are that if you get the dose right, you will survive. Vitamin C is known experimentally to inactivate viruses. In the event, we hope people make rational decisions.

If you hate this web site (but hit it anyway because you have a web site and get tips from here like Gordon Duff) and you do not want to link this site, AT LEAST link to the report by these doctors, it is so close to what I said anyway that it can be considered at least as good.

Complete confirmation Vitamin C recommendation for ebola is not sabotage

Today I got final confirmation that washes with my medical knowledge, here goes:

The actual way ebola kills is by causing a severe cytokine release in blood vessel walls, which if already irritated by a viral assault, will rupture from the irritation caused by a strong cytokine release. With regard to ebola, the exact cytokine is called IL-6, which is inhibited by 41 percent with adequate vitamin C present. This means, that from this mode of action alone, vitamin C will reduce the impact of ebola by 41 percent. If you combine this with the fact that vitamin C will strengthen the blood vessel walls as well, the two ways vitamin C helps will work in combination to prevent death from ebola, especially if ebola, which removes all vitamin C weakens the blood vessel walls by removing vitamin C to begin with. But there is more to this than that, diet can play a huge role and this will be tomorrow's main report, I am still digging and pulling stuff together.

The bottom line is that it really appears ebola can be beaten just by eating the correct foods and getting enough vitamin C (and absent correct foods, vitamin C is pretty much a magic bullet) but diet can also help a LOT.

Russia invades Ukraine? I doubt it.

Permalink

After being busted with CPR Foley, the warmongers in the White House need another false front so against all rational logic, Russia has now invaded Ukraine. I doubt it, but if it gets their war machine cranked up the ruse will have worked.

It is all about gold theft and BRICS

The U.S. dollar, which is still the world reserve currency, has been put under threat by the rash of busted lies that place strong question on America, and therefore America's stability and validity upon which the life of the dollar's reserve status rides. With Russia being the major player in the BRICS alliance, which is a proven viable bypass to dollar hegemony, the stability of the dollar is additionally threatened. So a nice little war with Russia right now would be . . . convenient.

And it is not just Russia and BRICS that is giving the zio clan headaches with the dollar, Russia has also managed to double its gold reserves in a short time period via mining and other efforts, all the while Wall Street and other scammers cannot account for gold that is being asked for by various countries. This is yet again another reason for the war mongers to use war to crush Russia and ensure their status quo dollar remains in top position.

And THAT is a risky game, Russia may not have the same military machine America has, but Russia is at least capable and has very good submarines, which can remain hidden and deliver a nuclear strike if Russia deems it necessary. Nukes trump aircraft carriers any day, and even a small one set off properly would wipe the Navy out, it is my opinion that the war mongers have gone nuts with the lies and aggression the same way a cornered rat will freak out and attack something much larger than itself, which in this case would be the truth.

War with Russia will not be war with Iraq, if the war mongers are stupid enough to try it you can count on a near total loss of the U.S. navy in the opening days, with a subsequent loss of the Air Force shortly thereafter. There is a big difference with Russia, 25,000 plus nuclear warheads and capable delivery systems say so.

So what if Russia cannot fight a ground war on America's terms? Russia can fight a nuclear war as well or better, and THAT is what really matters.

I Won the Train Battle

Permalink View associated video HERE

Last night the Mexican press (which is really just a copy of the American press) gave up and admitted that the trains cannot be ridden as stated and that there are not thousands of people riding them. They did not redact their past lies, but at least showed people on the trains in the realistic numbers I reported here, (20 - 30 per day, and few if any children). They showed the Federal Police checking the trains (as I said they were, along with the private forces). Additionally, they admitted it was Ferromex and no one else.

So I can claim a partial victory here, I shut down a lie. But I did not get the final answer, WHAT is happening to thousands of children who are vanishing from Central America? To take this story to its final end may well prove to be impossible, because it could only be accomplished by going into the synagogues where the first lie was spun, and asking the people there directly: I know these children are vanishing, WHERE DID THEY REALLY GO, you spun the lie about the trains, WHERE ARE THEY?

I doubt I would successfully leave in one piece, let alone with any real answers. and on that note,

Here is the final bust, which proves the beast train (as stated in the ziopress) never existed at all. In the following photo which was released in far to great detail, they blew it big time. Here we have a supposed derailment of The Beast, which is a long haul train traveling well established tracks for thousands of miles with at most 30 seasoned adult train hoppers on it, yet this "derailment" which was supposed to have 1,300 children on it was obviously staged at the end of a private spur, with no tracks at all in front of the beast.

Here is the "beast train derailment" which supposedly stranded 1,300 children. Yet if you look in front of this train, there are no tracks. This proves the derailments were staged on dead end tracks for a media show.

Zooming in on the front of the train strips the scam bare

A major video involving interviews of security forces and travels of Mexico to bust the children on trains scam was done by this web site, if you have not seen it yet, view it HERE

Napa (California) quake man made

How can I say that? Because there were bright flashes in the sky when it happened, and it happened at a depth of 6.6 miles (10 KM), which is almost impossibly shallow for an earthquake. Additionally, there is plenty of precedent for this. The earthquake machine is usually tuned to a depth of 10 kilometers, yet natural quakes seldom happen closer than 30 kilometers to the surface. Normal quake depth is at the 50 - 100 kilometer zone. We have only been seeing these shallow quakes since Japan and Haiti, WHAT CHANGED? Well, the flashes in the sky are a pretty good clue.

This report talks about the bright flashes, which are an obvious dead giveaway that the quake was artificially triggered. At one time I believed the stories about the charges coming up from the ground, but that is a load of bunk, it never happened 30 years ago, and the world did not change in a geological second. Something is amiss, and the following report PROVES IT.

March 20 Mexico quake verified MAN MADE

A reader sent me a mail with a link to a report by Dutchsince, which claimed that the march 20 quake in Mexico was man made. I was skeptical, but then took a look at his report which documented that a very well planned and advertised earthquake drill matching the exact same scenario at the exact same magnitude at the exact same time had taken place. If you look at what I said in my initial report - it felt like accelerating back and forth, not a violent movement, and in mails I also added that it had no vibration of any sort. This matches the descriptions of the Fukushima quake that came out of Japan. Furthermore, if you read my mails from Japan, in there my writers said that all the quakes were happening at a depth of 10 KM and because of that, and the way the quakes felt un natural, they believed the spate of recent quakes in Japan were from an earthquake machine, the existence of which is documented in the Fukushima report. Well, the USGS said this quake happened at a depth of 10 km, which matches Japan exactly. Usually quakes are much deeper, and this similarity with Japan is suspicious ESPECIALLY CONSIDERING

 "PASA LA VOZ" Son Hechos no palabras

This text article is dated March 13, and verifies that indeed, this quake HAD TO BE man made.

It is verified truth the quake in Mexico was indeed man made, the depth, which matches the suspicious quakes in Japan, and the fact it coincided with an earthquake drill matching the exact same scenario puts it over the top into the false flag terror category. Many of my readers are well read enough to know that on 9/11 there was a terror drill covering the EXACT SAME SCENARIO happening nationwide, including at NORAD, which caused them to fail to address and react to a very real situation, and the London train bombings, where the same thing happened. Now that terror in the name of Arabs has failed, they are attempting a new approach - terror in the name of the environment. You would think they would come up with a different bag of tricks, the whole "drill coincidence" theme is getting a little obvious. I made good and sure I got the real info from the real source before posting this, and now, I applaud Dutchsince for the WONDERFUL work!

And now, since this is proven, I am going to make a real good guess. I would be willing to bet that a gravity wave, or gravity machine has been invented. This would be prime for triggering earthquakes, because if you could put a gravity pull on the crust of the earth, in a direction other than down or up, it would indeed move the earth back and forth the way I felt it. I think that is what we are witnessing here and I would bet 500 pesos the Mexican government was not in on this particular joke.

This was my initial report of the March 20 Chiapas quake

I felt the earthquake in Mexico city, it happened at high noon.

I was in a Starbucks next to the Sams Club in the Santa Fe district of Mexico City. The quake lasted about 20 seconds, and whatever the magnitude, people gawked at the swaying buildings. SO, tie whatever magnitude this was into the Tokyo footage on 3/11. This swayed buildings and flickered the power. How much does it take to sway buildings and cause power glitches? At any rate, I was unimpressed with the 3/11 Tokyo footage.

Ok, I got the details, it was a 7.6 in Oaxaca Mexico, on the coast about 500 km away. My guestimate of the magnitude in Mexico City is that it was about a 4.5 - 5.0 at this distance. It felt like accelerating back and forth, and from the feel of it I would say the earth had to have moved 10 feet back and forth but it was not a violent movement. It disoriented drivers, after evacuation I saw a guy on a motorcycle talking to a cop, and the cop was sort of laughing, re-assuring the rider he was not delirious.

Hmm, a 7.6 500KM away swaying buildings and flickering power. Remind me, how big is Japan? No seismograph on 3/11 registered anything higher than a 6.67, consider that. What happened in Mexico today was much bigger. And the construction here is not that good, so I think there may have been a disaster at the epicenter, though everything is business as usual in Mexico City.

Iranian sail boat defended itself against U.S. Coast Guard

The U.S. Coast Guard has a policy of burning private boats anywhere in the world and a small fishing sailboat from Iran did not go along with the policy

As preposterous as it may sound, the U.S. coast guard boards boats everywhere in the world, not just along the American coast, and if things are not perfect, they detain everyone on the boat and burn it, even if it is a multi million dollar yacht. Knowing this policy, an Iranian fishing boat that was operating off the coast of Iran refused to allow boarding by the U.S. coast guard. The Coast Guard fired on this boat, but according to the Washington Post, left it floating with all aboard. At the end of this report is a link to a Washington Post article that downplays the Coast Guard's hostile role in international waters, and the attitude expressed in the Washington Post article says a LOT.

The following report about the coast guard's tyranny is 100 percent verified and accurate

About six months before I was anonymously detained over the Fukushima report, I was invited to dinner at a good friends home while I was in Bakersfield. His son, Nicholas Theriault, was on leave from the Coast Guard and I was invited over to meet him.

I already had background information about the U.S. coast guard sinking every boat that approached Ecuador, sight unseen. That's right, the U.S. Coast Guard put up a blockade off the coast of Ecuador, and sank every boat that approached that nation (this was going on a few years ago and was still going on when I talked to Nicholas).

The Coast guard also has been assigned to patrol the coasts of many other nations, invited or not. So I played Nicholas for information by seeming to agree with and be enthusiastic about everything he told me.

I said, What do you do when you come across a boat that is out to sea, in fully international waters, TOTALLY OUT OF AMERICA's JURISDICTION. I picked a no man's land as an example, the equatorial region 2,000 miles south of Hawaii, where NO drug dealers would be likely to go, where there would ONLY be innocents.

He said, we board it. I said, but that's illegal. You have no jurisdiction in that region. He said, "THAT DOES NOT MATTER, BECAUSE WE ARE THE U.S. AND WHAT IS ANYONE GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?"

I said, What happens when you go on a boat, and there are no drugs, and there is no smuggling going on, NOTHING, the people on the boat did NOTHING. He said, "we check their papers. If they are out to sea, and they do not have their papers in order, we take them off the boat, imprison them, and burn the boat. We cannot leave the boat just drifting out at sea. If there is no one on it it is a derelict, We HAVE TO burn it."

I said, WHY ARREST THEM IF THERE IS NO CRIME OCCURRING. He said, PAPERS ARE EVERYTHING. IF THEY DO NOT HAVE THEM, WE IMPRISON THEM AND TAKE THEM BACK TO THE U.S., AND BURN THE BOAT. I said, EVEN IF IT IS A MULTI MILLION DOLLAR YACHT OR SAIL BOAT and he said YES.

Then I said, Well, what happens if after being processed in the U.S. there was nothing wrong. He said, They get to go home. I said, Well, what about the boat? He said, it's their loss, we don't care.

I said, Well, If they leave from a home port, and are just out for a cruise, and are returning to that same home port, they would not need papers. He said, THAT DOES NOT MATTER. IF THAT IS THE STORY, WE STILL JAIL THEM, BURN THEIR BOAT, AND TAKE THEM BACK TO THE U.S.

And I made it very clear, I then asked him, SO, if you find a boat 50 miles off the coast of New Zealand, and the people on the boat do not have their documents in order, you burn the boat and take them back to the U.S., even though it would be obvious that they really probably are just out for a cruise and returning to New Zealand, where EVERYONE IN THE HARBOR WOULD RECOGNIZE THEM AND NEVER RAISE AN EYEBROW UPON THEIR RETURN, and HE SAID YES.

I do not think even Americans realize how much of an evil empire America has become. But the Iranians sure do, because the evils of the Coast Guard are probably well published there. Fat chance you would ever see a report about what the Coast Guard really does in the Washington post - which gets to the point of an article they recently published, where they played it all down and made it look like a friendly chummy affair, and those backwards Iranians were being prudes:

Washington Post report here

After reading the article, consider this: What business does America have boarding sail boats used for village fishing in Iran? What kind of tyranny is America anyway? And it is not just Iran, America does this in Latin America, Africa and everywhere else, even Vancouver Island in Vancouver Canada. Why has this burning of boats, which is a frequent occurrence never in the news? It should be HUGE NEWS, why not a peep about this in the press?

Kudos to the Iranians for showing force against tyranny, it would serve the coast guard right if the crew got shot.
